

About the Speaker

With over 35 years of experience in child, adolescent, and family mental health, Lai has extensive expertise in supporting families facing complex emotional, social, and behavioural challenges. He adopts a multisystemic and multimodal therapy approach, viewing school refusal as a relational and contextual issue rather than solely a child's problem. His work emphasizes collaborative practice between homes and schools, and promotes a team approach with other stakeholders when working with children experiencing school refusal.

About the Webinar

SRIMM Model

The SRIMM model draws on multisystemic principles and multimodal interventions, integrating resilience theory, cognitive-behavioural strategies, resource mobilisation, and child advocacy. This webinar will present practice-based evidence on the effectiveness of the SRIMM reintegration approach, “What It Takes, What Works”, which focuses on collaborative teamwork, rebuilding trust, restoring confidence, and enhancing emotional safety for children and families navigating school refusal challenges.

Lai will present:

A five-phase framework of the School Refusal Integrated Multisystemic and Multimodality (SRIMM) model, which guides parents, school stakeholders, and mental health professionals in the gradual reintegration of children into school.
